Section B

The extract below is from Dimanche Diller, by Henrietta Branford.

Read the extract carefully and then answer the questions that follow.

Dimanche was three years old when Polly Pugh arrived at Hilton Hall, the house her parents had lived in before they were lost at sea when she was just a baby. And let me tell you right now, this is not one of those stories in which the missing parents turn up at the end. You must just take it from me that every now and then fate deals someone a cruel blow. It dealt Dimanche Diller several, and the first and the worst of them was the loss of her mother and father. This is how it happened.

Sailing in their yacht Hippolytus among the rocky islands of the Cyclades, the Dillers were set upon by one of those storms that seem to come from nowhere. In a matter of seconds the sea had turned from blue to purple, and billows of black cloud had blotted out the summer sky.

"Cut loose sheets, Dolores! We're carrying too much sail," Darcy shouted above the sound of creaking wood and snapping canvas. "Batten down the hatches! You and Dimanche man the lifeboat."

Dimanche's mother was nothing if not thorough, and it was her thoroughness, even in the face of mortal danger, that saved her baby daughter's life. She bundled Dimanche into her tiny lifejacket, wrapped her in a blanket and tied her securely to the thwart. She kissed her, and turned towards her husband.

"Don't wait for me," he shouted. "I must belay the mizzen! You get in with Dimanche."

At that very moment, a monster of a wave, as strong as steel, rose high above the little boat, hung for a moment like a cliff of glass, and crashed on to the deck. It cracked the boat from stem to stern, splintered the mast, ripped through the sails, and tore baby Dimanche from her mother's arms, casting the lifeboat and its precious cargo adrift upon the sea.

Dimanche cried and struggled as the storm drove her fragile boat far to the south and west. All night the great waves surged, tossing the lifeboat like a cork. Salt sea spray soaked Dimanche's blanket, and an east wind turned her tiny face and hands to ice.

At dawn the next day, a fisherman from Kithira saw what he thought must be an empty lifeboat, rising and falling on the steady swell. He pulled in his net, and rowed across to take a look, hauling the battered lifeboat alongside with a boathook. Imagine his surprise when, looking in, he saw Dimanche, lying in a tangle of blanket in the bottom!

"Aphrodite, Goddess of Love and Beauty," he whispered, "who floated in her scallop shell past this very island, was not more beautiful than this child." Tearing off his jumper, he wrapped the baby in it and rowed for home, marvelling as he did so at the birthmark on the baby's wrist: it was just the shape of his own island of Kithira.

He and his wife were sorely tempted to keep the child, and how different this story would have been if they had done so. But they were parents themselves, and they could imagine all too well the frightful misery of this child's mother and father, if they were still alive. Sadly they gave her to the village priest, whose job it was to care for foundlings.

The priest took Dimanche by plane to Athens, on the mainland, and handed her over to the police. By this time the wreckage of the Hippolytus had been discovered, washed up on the coast of Milos. Helicopters were searching every square mile of sea from Samos down to Crete and northwards to the Sporades but neither Darcy nor Dolores was ever found.

The Greek police handed Dimanche over to someone from the Red Cross, who flew her back to London and placed her in the loving care of the Sisters of Small Mercies. In due course the following advertisement appeared in the personal column of The Times:

FOUND DRIFTING IN THE MEDITERRANEAN SEA, it said, DIMANCHE DILLER, BABY DAUGHTER OF DARCY AND DOLORES DILLER, BOTH BELIEVED LOST AT SEA.

There was a number to ring and an address to write to.

If you are wondering how the nuns knew Dimanche's name, it was because her mother Dolores was so very thorough. She had sewn tiny embroidered name tapes into every one of Dimanche's clothes: her babygrow, her vest, her nappy, even her plastic pants, all bore her name in letters of pink silk. How did they know that Darcy and Dolores were the names of her late parents? The Greek Rescue Service had found the lost yacht's log book, sealed in polythene and washed ashore with the wreckage. It gave them details of her course, and the names of the three people who had sailed in her. So far as anybody knew, it was all that remained to Dimanche of her dear parents.

7. Select the TWO most accurate words to describe the names of the members of the Diller family.

A Rhyming

B Alliterative

C Ubiquitous

D Uncommon

E Inconspicuous

8. Think carefully about the narrative voice in the text. Which of these is NOT correct?

B The narrator addresses the reader directly.

C The narrator is one of the characters in the story.

D The narrator uses the first person occasionally.

E The narrator has a matter-of-fact attitude.

9. What do we learn about Dimanche Diller in the extract?

Select all that are correct.

A She survived a shipwreck as a baby.

B She was a gorgeous baby.

C She is an orphan.

D She has been adopted by her aunt.

E More than one misfortune will befall her.

10. Which of the following descriptions from the text include alliteration?

Select all that are correct.

A 'billows of black cloud had blotted out the summer sky'

B 'Aphrodite, Goddess of Love and Beauty'

C 'Salt sea spray soaked Dimanche's blanket'

D 'It cracked the boat from stem to stern, splintered the mast'

E 'the sea had turned from blue to purple'

11. Which of the following descriptions from the text are similes?

Select all that are correct.

A 'hung for a moment like a cliff of glass'

B 'Dimanche cried and struggled as the storm drove her fragile boat'

C 'marvelling as he did so at the birthmark on the baby's wrist'

D 'the great waves surged, tossing the lifeboat like a cork'

E 'a monster of a wave, as strong as steel'

12. 'It cracked the boat from stem to stern, splintered the mast, ripped through the sails, and tore baby Dimanche from her mother's arms, casting the lifeboat and its precious cargo adrift upon the sea.' (lines 20–23)

Why has the author used one long sentence here?

Pick the most accurate explanation.

A They want to depict a stream of consciousness (a continuous flow of thoughts).

B They want to mimic natural speech patterns.

C They want to convey the idea of a fast and unstoppable chain of events.

D They want to reduce the number of words on the page.

E They want to make the reader read more slowly.

13. Select the TWO most accurate words to describe ALL the verbs used in the sentence that begins 'It cracked the boat …' (lines 20–23).

A Onomatopoeic

B Destructive

C Violent

D Benign

E Alliterative

14. Which of the following phrases from the text are specific to sailing?

Select all that are correct.

17. '"Aphrodite, Goddess of Love and Beauty," he whispered, "who floated in her scallop shell past this very island, was not more beautiful than this child."' (lines 31–32)

Which of the following literary techniques are used in this sentence?

Select all that are correct.

A Onomatopoeia

B Simile

C Sibilance

D Hyperbole

E Irony

18. Why is it surprising that the fisherman and his wife did not keep the baby?

Select all that are correct.

A They thought that the baby's parents must be looking for her.

B The baby's birthmark is the same shape as the fisherman's island, which suggests it was fate that he found her.

C They already have children of their own.

D The fisherman thinks she is the most beautiful baby he has ever seen.

E They had a strong urge to keep her.

19. Think about the chain of custody in the extract. Which of these is NOT correct?

Select one answer.

A There are at least five different parties in the chain of custody.

B A Greek priest received Dimanche from a fisherman.

C The Greek priest arranged for some nuns to care for Dimanche.

D The Metropolitan Police were not involved at any stage.

E A charity worker got Dimanche from Greece to England.

20. In Greek mythology, Hippolytus was killed when a sea monster sent by Poseidon (the god of the sea) scared his horses.

Why was Hippolytus an apt name for the Dillers' yacht?

Pick the most accurate explanation.

A The foaming crests of waves are known as 'white horses'.

B The yacht was sailing around the Greek islands.

C Hippolytus was male, but boats are normally thought of as female.

D The yacht was destroyed by 'a monster of a wave' at sea.

E The Dillers must have been scared by the storm.

21. Dimanche was placed in 'in the loving care of the Sisters of Small Mercies' (line 46). What are small mercies?

Pick the most accurate explanation.

A They are little things to be grateful for.

B They are punishments that are less harsh than those deserved.

C They are tiny good luck charms.

D They are half-hearted efforts to relieve suffering.

E They are short exclamations of surprise.

22. Look carefully at the final paragraph. Which of these is NOT correct?

Select one answer.

A Dimanche felt deep affection towards her parents.

B The yacht's log book was wrapped in plastic.

C All of Dimanche's clothes, except for her raincoat, were labelled.

D What was left of the yacht had been swept on to the coast.

E The log book gave information about the route the Dillers were taking.

23. 'So far as anybody knew, it was all that remained to Dimanche of her dear parents.' (lines 57–58)

Why does the reader have reason to believe that the log book was NOT all that remained to Dimanche of her parents?

Select all that are correct.

A When the baby was found, she was wearing her mother's locket around her neck.

B The beginning of the extract suggests that Dimanche is now living at her parents' house.

C The storm-damaged yacht might have been salvageable.

D As Mrs Diller was so conscientious, it is fair to assume that she would have made provision for her daughter in such an eventuality.

E Some personal effects must have been washed up with the boat.

Section C

The poem below is The Inchcape Rock, by Robert Southey.

Read the poem carefully and then answer the questions that follow.

No stir in the air, no stir in the sea,
The Ship was still as she could be;
Her sails from heaven received no motion;
Her keel was steady in the ocean.

Without either sign or sound of their shock,
The waves flowed over the Inchcape Rock;
So little they rose, so little they fell,
They did not move the Inchcape Bell.

The Abbot of Aberbrothok
Had placed that bell on the Inchcape Rock;
On a buoy in the storm it floated and swung,
And over the waves its warning rung.

When the Rock was hid by the surge's swell,
The Mariners heard the warning Bell;
And then they knew the perilous Rock,
And blest the Abbot of Aberbrothok.

The Sun in the heaven was shining gay;
All things were joyful on that day;
The sea-birds screamed as they wheeled round,
And there was joyance in their sound.

The buoy of the Inchcape Bell was seen,
A darker speck on the ocean green:
Sir Ralph the Rover walked his deck,
And fixed his eye on the darker speck.

He felt the cheering power of spring;
It made him whistle, it made him sing:
His heart was mirthful to excess,
But the Rover's mirth was wickedness.

His eye was on the Inchcape Float;
Quoth he, "My men, put out the boat,
And row me to the Inchcape Rock,
And I'll plague the Abbot of Aberbrothok."

The boat is lowered, the boatmen row,
And to the Inchcape Rock they go;
Sir Ralph bent over from the boat,
And he cut the bell from the Inchcape Float.

Down sank the Bell with a gurgling sound;
The bubbles rose and burst around:
Quoth Sir Ralph, "The next who comes to the Rock,
Won't bless the Abbot of Aberbrothok."

Sir Ralph the Rover sailed away;
He scoured the seas for many a day;
And now grown rich with plundered store,
He steers his course for Scotland's shore.

So thick a haze o'erspreads the sky,
They cannot see the sun on high:
The wind hath blown a gale all day,
At evening it hath died away.

On the deck the Rover takes his stand;
So dark it is they see no land.
Quoth Sir Ralph, "It will be lighter soon,
For there is the dawn of the rising Moon."

"Canst hear," said one, "the breakers roar?
For methinks we should be near the shore."
"Now, where we are I cannot tell,
But I wish we could hear the Inchcape Bell."

They hear no sound; the swell is strong;
Though the wind hath fallen, they drift along,
Till the vessel strikes with a shivering shock:
"Oh Christ! It is the Inchcape Rock!"

Sir Ralph the Rover tore his hair,
He curst himself in his despair:
The waves rush in on every side;
The ship is sinking beneath the tide.

But even in his dying fear,
One dreadful sound could the Rover hear —
A sound as if, with the Inchcape Bell,
The Devil below was ringing his knell.

24. What is Inchcape Rock?

Pick the most accurate explanation.

A It is a rocky island off the coast of Scotland.

B It is a large, towering sea cliff.

C It is the location of a lighthouse.

D It is the site of the Abbey of Aberbrothok.

E It is a hazardous rock below the surface of the sea.

25. Think about the structure of the poem. Which of these is NOT correct?

Select one answer.

A It has an AABB rhyme scheme.

Marking Guidance

For each question, the maximum number of marks available is shown.

Where questions require multiple answers and use the rubric, 'Select all that are correct', negative marking should also be applied, whereby 1 mark is deducted for each incorrect answer selected down to 0 marks (note that the number of marks per question cannot be negative).

For example:

If a question is worth 2 marks and requires options A, B and C to be selected:

Award 2 marks for A, B and C selected or 1 mark for any two correct answers selected.

Award 1 mark for A, B, C and D or E selected (2 marks – 1 incorrect = 1 mark).

Award 0 marks for A, B, C, D and E selected (2 marks – 2 incorrect = 0 marks).

Award 0 marks for A, B and E selected or equivalent (1 mark – 1 incorrect = 0 marks).

1.	B	[1 mark]
2.	E	[1 mark]
3.	A	[1 mark]
4.	C	[1 mark]
5.	E	[1 mark]
6.	D	[1 mark]
7.	B, D (both answers must be correct)	[1 mark]
8.	C	[1 mark]
