Section B

The extract below is from Max Kowalski Didn't Mean It, by Susie Day.

Read the extract carefully and then answer the questions that follow.

'It's not my fault, Mr Brew,' said Max.

'It never is,' sighed Mr Brew. 'Go on. What is it this time? Did it sprout wings and fly away? Or perhaps you got amnesia, and forgot you had any homework?'

That wasn't fair. As if he'd pretend to have amnesia more than once, to the same teacher.

And it really wasn't his fault, this time.

Monday mornings were never Max's best. This one had started with Ripley waking him up by sitting on his chest, pressing her face close to his, and whispering with hot breath, 'There's something gone wrong with my earthworm,' before opening her sticky hand right under his nose.

There was something gone wrong with her earthworm. It was dead. Stiff and curled, like a salt-and-vinegar French Fry. Which was what happened when you put an earthworm in your hoodie pocket for a week and forgot about it.

He'd told her it was no use as a pet.

Loads of times.

But Ripley was six, and people who are six never listen to anyone, apparently.

'Geroff,' said Max, pushing her off his bunk on to the floor. Like anyone would.

Ripley hit the floor with a thud and yelled like she was being murderized.

That woke up Thelma and Louise, the twins, who were nine and never listened to him either.

'What? What's going on? Help! Fire! Aaaargh!' yelled Thelma from the other top bunk, scrabbling for her glasses.

'That's not very helpful,' said Louise quietly from her bottom bunk.

'Look what Max did!' wailed Ripley, thrusting the stiff, curled and now snapped-in-half earthworm at Thelma.

'Max! You killed it!'

'I did not!'

'It's pretty bloody dead!'

'Well, I didn't kill it!'

'Oi!' came a deep yell from the front room. 'Somebody's trying to sleep in here, remember?'

They all hushed at once. Their dad, Big Pete Kowalski, did shifts driving a forklift in a warehouse. Four nights a week, he was a bouncer on the doors at Voodoo nightclub. If he wasn't on a job, his mornings were for sleeping.

'But my worm …' mumbled Ripley.

Thelma glared at Max from her top bunk from behind her pink-rimmed glasses.

He was never going to get any peace now.

'Come on,' he said.

They all tiptoed to the kitchen, Max and Ripley and the twins. Ripley laid the two curled ends forlornly on the table.

'Worms can regrow themselves,' said Louise, tucking her long pale hair behind one ear before leaning in for a closer look. 'If you chop one in half, it grows itself a new bottom.'

'That's disgusting,' said Thelma.

'It's not! Annelids are amazing. Did you know –?'

'Didn't know, don't care,' said Thelma.

'Can it grow a new bottom even after it's dead?' asked Ripley.

They all looked at the crispy worm-halves.

Louise looked at Max, a concerned crinkle in the centre of her forehead.

'I reckon not,' said Max, in a soft voice.

So instead of going back to bed, Max had to hold an earthworm funeral – which meant sneaking out of the flat to Mrs Gupta's three doors down in the freezing cold to bury it in the hard earth of her yucca plant, and everyone having to say a little something about how much the earthworm had meant to them, what a shining light it had been in their lives, how it had gone to a better place, and so on.

7. Look carefully at lines 1–6. Which of these is NOT correct?

Select one answer.

A Max hasn't done his homework.

E The children had all been very fond of the earthworm.

Section C

The extract below is from Game Changer, by Tim Bowler.

Read the extract carefully and then answer the questions that follow.

I listen to the sounds in the house: Dad washing up the supper things downstairs, Mum walking up and down the hall, talking on the phone. I'm just wondering where Meggie is when she knocks on my door.

'What you doing, big guy?' she calls.

I quickly cancel the unsent email and switch off the computer.

'Nothing much.'

She comes in and walks over. She's got a dressing gown on and a towel round her neck and her hair's wet from the shower. She puts a hand on my shoulder.

'Nothing much?' she says.

'Yeah.'

'Sounds like fun.'

She pulls up a chair next to me.

'You OK?' she says.

'Yeah.'

'Just switched off your computer?'

'Yeah.'

'Screen light's still on.'

I switch off the screen. She looks over my desk, picks up the top book from the pile.

'I know,' she says, glancing over it, 'nosy little sister.'

'I don't mind you being nosy.'

She studies the book cover.

'Treasure Island. You must have read this nine times, Mikey.'

More like twenty-nine times, but I don't tell Meggie that. She puts the book down again and turns to me.

'So what happened yesterday, big guy?'

'Nothing.'

'You were doing great,' she says. 'Mum and Dad are really pleased with the way you're trying to face things. But I didn't tell them how quiet you were coming back, how you were like … closed up. Was it that bad, where we went?'

'I chose the place, so it's my fault if it was.'

Meggie frowns.

'Maybe I should have fought you harder and taken you somewhere else. I was really worried when you told me where you wanted to go, Mikey, so noisy and crowded and everything, all the things that freak you out, normally. I thought you were being a bit overambitious.'

She's probably right—she usually is—but I was trying to show some bottle. I thought—I'll choose a tough place, a really tough place, all the things that scare the pants off me, and it'll be a real test for me to see if I can handle it, and I was handling it, sort of, till the stuff happened. I don't answer Meggie. Don't know what to say to her.

'Mikey?'

'Call me Mole like everyone else does.'

'Mum and Dad don't call you Mole, and I'm not going to either.'

I stare into Meggie's face. It's so hard to think of her as thirteen. She seems two years older than me rather than two years younger, but it's always been that way. It's only when she's got Lucy and her other mates round and they go all girlie that she seems her true age.

24. What does the term 'big guy' (line 4) tell us about Meggie and the narrator?

Select all that are correct.

A The narrator is male.

B Meggie is being ironic because the narrator is actually quite small.

C Meggie feels affection for the narrator.

D Meggie doesn't like the narrator.

E Meggie is hinting that the narrator needs to lose weight.

25. What does Meggie mean when she says, 'Sounds like fun'?

Pick the most accurate explanation.

A She thinks that doing nothing is enjoyable.

B She thinks that the music she can hear is by a band called Fun.

C She is being sarcastic to show contempt.

D She is teasing the narrator in a good-natured way.

E She is envious because she doesn't have time to sit and do nothing.

26. Look carefully at what Meggie says in lines 4–17. What does it suggest?

Select all that are correct.

A Meggie is observant.

B Meggie is just passing the time with idle chit-chat.

C Meggie knows the narrator was doing something before she came in.

D Meggie suspects the narrator has just hurriedly turned off the computer.

E Meggie wants to use the computer.

27. Select the TWO most accurate words to describe the place that Meggie and Mikey went to the day before.

A Convivial

B Hectic

C Desolate

D Rowdy

E Thrilling

28. Look carefully at lines 32–39. Which of these is NOT correct?

Select one answer.

A Crowded, noisy places make Mikey panic.

B Mikey had tried to face his fears and challenge himself.

C Mikey had drunk too many bottles of beer.

D Mikey had been coping but then something happened.

E Meggie worries about her brother and feels responsible for him.

29. Why do you think that Meggie refuses to call Mikey 'Mole'?

Pick the most accurate explanation.

A She thinks that Mikey is too old for a childish nickname.

B She does not want to be told off by her parents.

C She doesn't think that 'Mole' is a very nice name for Mikey.

D She is being petulant.

E She thinks that she is too grown-up to use nicknames.

30. Look carefully at the final paragraph. Which of these is NOT correct?

Select one answer.

A Mikey is fifteen.

B Meggie is two years younger than Mikey.

C Meggie generally acts older than her years.

D Mikey thinks Meggie behaves in an infantile way when she's with her friends.

E Mikey looks up to Meggie.

Section D

Answer the following questions using BOTH extracts.

31. Compare the narrative voices in the two texts. Which of these is NOT correct?

Select one answer.

Marking Guidance

For each question, the maximum number of marks available is shown.

Where questions require multiple answers and use the rubric, 'Select all that are correct', negative marking should also be applied, whereby 1 mark is deducted for each incorrect answer selected down to 0 marks (note that the number of marks per question cannot be negative).

For example:

If a question is worth 2 marks and requires options A, B and C to be selected:

Award 2 marks for A, B and C selected or 1 mark for any two correct answers selected.

Award 1 mark for A, B, C and D or E selected (2 marks – 1 incorrect = 1 mark).

Award 0 marks for A, B, C, D and E selected (2 marks – 2 incorrect = 0 marks).

Award 0 marks for A, B and E selected or equivalent (1 mark – 1 incorrect = 0 marks).

1.	E	[1 mark]
2.	B	[1 mark]
3.	A	[1 mark]
4.	C	[1 mark]
5.	D	[1 mark]
